Just when this time will come is as yet problematical, but there is a feeling of confidence that it will not be much longer.

One feature of the day's session was that clearances from domestic ports were the largest in some time, totaling about 52,000 bales, most of which went out from New York, destined for Great Britain and France. The trade is saxiously awaiting announcement when though bills of lading will be issued, and it is expected within a week or so, which is counted on to start considerable business, as it will reduce overhead charges and enable nany indicates to be filled. New York—The liquidation in the market yesterday was plainly forced. A lot of people have been refusing to believe the evidence of the most essential facts of the situation and have held off until the decline went far enough to undermine the average speculative buttress. We do not look for anything like a sustained advance in prices for a long time, but we face a reconstruction period that will be extremely trying, but for the next 24 or 48 hours there could easily be a rally on technical conditions.—Morse to Shepard & Gluck.

or 48 hours there could easily be a rally on technical conditions.—Morse to Shepard & Gluck.

Chicago — Conservatives say low points are now due and congestion will arise. Otherwise the domestic political news is not liked and newspapers show signs of an uproar over high cost of eggs and butter. Herald says country is afraid of Australian and Argentine meats and is marketing its cattle in a hurry. Many now look on the 17½ chog price as a mere prop. The United States can not export any corn of monsequence before February or March, and by March the Argentine should be pouring its 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 corn surplus into Europe, with hnother 150,000,000 new surplus of the in May. Just how the United States is to export its wheat surplus is not shown. J. J. Stream mentions is not shown. J. I. Stream mentions of complaints of short selling and says Senator Hitchock asks why not restrict short selling of grain. Current comments, however, suggest that patternalism of the farmer is reaching an end.—Wagner & Co.

Suggestion of Possible Restriction of Short Selling Causes Upturn in Grains. CHICAGO, Nov. 26 .- Semi-official in CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Semi-official inquiries as to whether snort selling of corn might not be as effectually prevented as similar operations in cotton led to a surjing flurry on the part of numerous speculators in the corn market today. The inquiries were construed in some quarters as a threat of possible further restrictions on trading. Opening quotations, which ranged from \(^1\)_{10} coff to 1\(^3\)_{10} advance with Docember \(^3\)_{122\(^1\)_{10}}, were followed by a buige all around, and then a deacent to well below yesterday's finish.

Buying on the decline absorbed the offerings and brought about an upturn higher than before. Prices closed strong, 3\(^1\)_{10} co to 5\(^3\)_{10} co net higher, with December \(^3\)_{125\(^1\)_{10}} and January \(^3\)_{1.26\(^1\)_{10}}.
